Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

2. Claims 4 and 13-14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Gerbault et al (6,324,661).

Gerbault et al disclose a method for managing integrity faults, comprising:

Performing a content checksum of a file in a first repository node to obtain a first checksum and storing the first checksum in the first repository node (col. 4, lines 13-21);

Re-performing the content checksum on the file to obtain a second checksum (col. 4, lines 25-27) and comparing the second checksum with the first checksum (col. 4, lines 27-29); and

If the second checksum does not equal the first checksum, then recovering the file by on-line interchange (abstract, col. 4, lines 43-47). Gerbault et al do not disclose recovering a copy of the file from another repository node. However, it would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the computer testing art, at the time the invention was made, to interchange or replace the erroneous portion with a copy of another non-erroneous portion of another repository node as needed if desired so that error can be corrected.

As per claims 13-14, these claims are rejected under similar rationale as set forth in claim 4.

3. Claim 11 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Gerbault (6,324,661) as applied to claim 4 above, and further in view of Hoff et al.

Claim 11, the teaching of Gerbault has been discussed above. Gerbault does not disclose wherein the checksum is an MD5 checksum. However, Hoff et al disclose the checksum is an MD5 checksum (223). Therefore, it would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art, at the time the invention was made, to incorporate the MD5 checksum as taught by Hoff et al into the invention of Gerbault so that it can be used to perform efficient equality checks between file nodes (col. 6, lines 41-49).

4. Claims 5-10 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
5. Claims 1-3 and 12 are allowable.

6. Applicant's arguments filed on 3/13/06 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive because:

7. Applicant argues that Gerbault does not describe that if two checksums are not the same, then recovering a copy of the file from another repository node.

Examiner disagrees with applicant because Gerbault et al disclose If the second checksum does not equal the first checksum, then recovering the file by on-line interchange (abstract, col. 4, lines 43-47). Gerbault et al do not disclose recovering a copy of the file from another repository node. However, it would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the computer testing art, at the time the invention was made, to interchange or replace the erroneous portion with a copy of another non-erroneous portion of another repository node as needed if desired so that error can be corrected.
